Charles Sumner at the Annual Convention of the Republican Party of Massachusetts, Held at Worcester, September 22, 1869 These they would hand over to oblivion, hoping on some local appeal to disorganize our forces, or, perhaps, obtain power to be wielded against the national cause. Massachusetts cannot afford to occupy an uncertain position. Therefore, I begin by asking you to think of our country, our whole country, - in other words, of National Affairs at home and abroad. Security for the Future It is now four years since I had the honor of presiding at our annual Convention, and I do not forget how at that time I endeavored to remind you of this same national cause then in fearful peril. The war of armies was ended; no longer was fellow-citizen arrayed against fellow-citizen; on each side the trumpet was hushed, the banner furled. But the defection of Andrew Johnson had then begun, and out of that defection the Rebellion assumed new life, with new purposes...
