Jaffray was a citizen of no single country. From his early manhood he moved about over the face of the world-not aimlessly, but with clear intelligent purpose. He was an explorer, a pioneer, and this accounts for the gaps that will be found in this or any story of his life. He lived in too many places too far from each other to allow a closely woven biography to be written. One could have journeyed half way around the world to see him, only to find that he had left the day before to visit some remote point in the Far East where some important gathering looked to him for guidance. Jaffray was a Canadian by birth. Wherever he traveled, home to him always meant Canada. Of Canada he was ever proud, and he remained loyal to his country as long as he lived. But he had met Christ as Moses had met God at the burning bush, and he had been baptized into His Spirit, made to feel the impulses of His heart. After that, Christ s people were his people in a sense none other could be. For the lost tribes of the earth he felt a kinship such as Moses felt for the children of Israel. He felt them to be God s people, though held under the bondage of sin. In the same way they were Jaffray s own people, and he was called to set them free. He distinctly heard a Voice saying, Say to Pharaoh: Let my people go! This feeling of kinship with the lost of the earth and the conviction that he had been commissioned to deliver them...
